

Situations

Read the situation to your student(s). Try to engage in discussion. Feel free to lead into deeper conversation and allow students to ask questions.

Scenario 1:

You are struggling to eat the food that your host parents have prepared for you.

You don't want to offend them and are also very hungry. What do you do?

Scenario 2:

Your host family has told you that they would like for you to attend religious services with them. You have attended one time and have decided you would prefer not to attend again. What do you say to them? What steps can you take if they do not agree with your wishes?

Scenario 3:

You like your Area Representative but it seems to you that they are friends with the host family so you are worried about telling them your concerns about the host family. What do you do and who can you talk to ?

Scenario 4:

You are at a party and someone offers you alcohol. You say no, but they insist you just have a few sips, that no one will find out, and that it's not a big deal. What do you say and what can you do in this situation?

Scenario 5:

You are 18 years old. There is a friend at school who is 15 years old and they have expressed romantic interest in you. You are attracted to them but you know they are too young for you, by law. What do you do?

Scenario 6:

There are some things that are going on in your host family's home that make you feel very uncomfortable. For example, how the host family treats their children, how they interact with you or how one of their friends interacts with you. You know that they have done a lot for you and you don't want to hurt them so this puts you in a tough situation. What do you do? Who can you talk to about your concerns?
